VOL. XIX. NO 75. CHARLEROI, WASHINGTON CO., SATURDAY, AUGUST 31, 1918 TWO CENTS

WILL BEGIN PAVING OF FREIGHT YARD WITH BLOCK NEXT TUESDAY

Contractor To Commence Important Improvement At That Time

GRASS PLOT IN THE YARD

The actual work of pavisg of the local freight yard will begin Tuesday morning next, under direction of Tony Camanelli, a local contractor, who has everything in readiness to commence the job. The Belgian block for this purpose has been piled up in the yards along McKean avenue for a number of months, but on Tuesday morning or as soon as the foundation for the paving is completed, these battlement piles will begin to disappear from their present location to be transformed into a splendid driveway and finely paved yard.

It is the purpose of the railroad company to pave all of the yard in front of the freight station with the exception of a stretch of about ten feet directly in front and parallel with the present structure. The purpose of leaving this unpaved is because the plans have already been prepared for a new freight station at this point and which is scheduled to be erected at some later date. It will be a much larger building than the present structure and will extend over the unpaved portion of the yard.

That portion of the yard facing on McKean avenue above Fourth street, will have a driveway parallel to the railroad tracks and an outlet to McKean avenue along the line of the Mountser property. A three-cornered plot facing on McKean avenue and about the middle of the block will be left unpaved and in place of Belgian block it will be put down in grass with flower beds for ornaments.

The improvement will make conditions in the local freight yard vastly superior to what they are at present time. The paving will insure truckmen and draymen easy access at all times to freight cars and the freight station and make their work much easier in loading and unloading freight. Weather conditions will have no effect on their operations and quicker handling of shipments will be possible when this improvement has been completed.

In addtion to paving the yard the railroad company will also erect two big concrete bumper blocks, similar to the one at the end of track near the freight station, at the ends of the two storage tracks.

The Huns stubbornly persist in the error of judging the Allies by themselves. An American Colonel asked a captured officer if the German privates were told that they would be killed if captured by Americans. "Why, yes," came the glib answer; "don't you tell your men the same thing about the Germans?"

HAROLD E DILL SUMMONED FOR SERVICE

Harold B. Dill, who has been assistant to Lawrence B. Frye, undertaker since last September, has been summoned by the selective board of the Third District, located at Canonsburg to report at their headquarters Wednesday, September 4 at 8 p. m. to entrain for Camp Forrest, Lytle, Ga., to enter the military service of the United States. Mr. Dill's home is in Finleyville and during his stay in Charleroi has made many warm friends.

LESS POWER FOR PLANTS

New Order Just Issued Affects All Plants In Charleroi

OFF EACH DAY 8 TO 4:30

An order has been recived in Charleroi by the manufacturing plants from the West Penn Power company, to the effect that power will be shut off from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. every day to take effect immediately and to continue for an indefinite period. The West Penn has been notified by the National Fuel Administration that this is a necessary conservation measure, and that this order will be in effect until further notice.

Mr. Leith, local superintendent, says that the order will affect every industry using 20 or more horsepower of electricity from 50 to 100 per cent according to the importance of the work in which they are engaged. If the plants are working on war essentials they will be affected approximately 50 per cent; others not working on war essentials will be affected 100 per cent.

The order means that no power can be used in some plants between the hours specified, while in others it will be cut down one-half. It will affect practically all the plants in Charleroi some more and some less and will cause the management to change working hours, if this is possible, in order to keep up the maximum production. The steel mills are doing this now but it may be more difficult for the other plants to make satisfactory arrangements for the employment of their labor.

NO PAPER WILL BE ISSUED ON MONDAY

Following our usual custom no paper will be isued from the office of the Mail on Monday next, Labor Day.

Compares Charge To Pickett's Famous Dash

"That charge of the One Hundred and Tenth on the Marne front, when the Allied counter-attack began was as sublime and splendid a thing as the charge that Pickett and his men made on the field at Gettysburg."

So declared Rev. Daniel L. Marsh, pastor of the Smithfield Street Methodist church of Pittsburg, recently returned from six months' Y. M. C. A. work in France as religious director on a 64-mile district centering at General Pershing's headquarters, in an address before the Kiwanis Club at the Fort Pitt hotel Friday afternoon. It was his first public address since he returned from France.

"I saw the One Hundred and Tenth afterward," said Dr. Marsh, "when they went into repose in a wood back of the line. I watched them as they spread their bunks. And one of the men, a sturdy, intelligent young fellow, who told me he was the son of Dr. J. P. Kerr of Pittsburg, told me the story of their charge.

"He told me how the regiment came out of a wood on a hill, swept across the intervening fields and stormed the woods on the other side.

"Splendid though the charge was that Pickett made at Gettysburg, the charge of the western Pennsylvania boys that day was, in one sense, at least, even finer. Pickett and his men despite their gallantry, didn't get what they went after. But the boys of the 110th went over to that woods and took it and held it, in spite of the hail storm of machine gun fire that the Allied counter-attack began was as sublime and splendid a thing as the charge that Pickett and his men made on the field at Gettysburg."

"I was at the hospital in Chateau-Thierry the night after I heard the story of that charge, when they began bringing in more wounded men. And, as the first ambulance load was carried into the hospital, the names of the men and their unit were read off. They were boys of the One Hundred and Tenth, wounded by bombs that a German aeroplane had dropped upon the regiment. I questioned the wounded fellows and they told me how their position had been bombed while they slept.

"One of the wounded boys called me to him. I asked him if there was anything I could do for him. He asked me to reach into the breast pocket of his tunic. There I found a purse and a Testament. And through the purse was a hole. The boy told me he had carried the purse and Testament in the pocket over his heart, when he went into action several days before. A bullet struck him directly over the heast. It had gone through the purse and through the Testament. And then, its force being spent, it had only strength enough to burn his skin a little. Theboy asked that the Testament be taken to his mother in Apollo. His name was Isa Deemer."

As he named the Apollo boy Dr. Marsh pulled out the Testanient and exhibited to those in the audience. The bullet has glued the book shut.

CHANGE IN FIRE PREVENTION DAY

At the suggestion of the Hon. William G. McAdoo Secretary of the United States Treasury, Fire Prevention Day has been postponed from Wednesday, October 9, 1918 to Saturday, November 2, 1918, so that it may not interfere with the Liberty Loan campaign in October.

Fully appreciating the suggestion of Secretary McAdoo we would be pleased to have your co-operation in withholding for the present any activities the may have been contemplated for this occasion so that every one will be free to do their utmost during the Liberty Loan compaign.

Arrangements for Fire Prevention Day, Saturday, November 2, 1918, will be carried out as far as possible in line with the program sent out by this Department on August 1, and we would appreciate your co-operation in the movement, which you have already so generously shown, after the Liberty Loan compaign is ended. The school exercises for this occasion will be observed on Friday, November 1, in accordance with the original program.

Very truly yours,
G. Chal Port.
State Fire Marshal

WILL SEND 43 MEN ON THE 5TH

Forty-three men will be sent from the Fifth District of Washington county, on Thursday next, September 5th, Camp Greenleaf, Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga. When this quota has been sumA men in the Fifth District, except moned it will clean up all the Class 1-those who registered on the 24th of August. In this latter registration there were but 66 men, some of whom will not be available for service for various reasons. It is possible however that theBoard will secure about 50, all of whom will be summoned for service in the September draft. The new draft law will be depended upon to secure the necessary number of men to meet the demands of the government from now on until the end of the war.

John A. Carson.

John A. Carson one of the best known farmers of Fallowfield township, died at his home near Lover post office Saturday morning, August 31, at 12:30 o'clock aged 63 years. He is survived by his widow and nine children. Funeral services will be held at his late home, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, interment at Maple creek.

WOMAN CLEARED IN SHOPLIFTING CASE ON A PLEA OF INSANITY

Husband Convicted On A Charge of Receiving Stolen Goods

VERDICT SURPRISE TO OFFICERS

Local police officials as well as a number of Charleroi business men were greatly surprised at the verdict returned by a jury at Washington on Friday in the case of the commonwealth against Elizabeth Housika and her husband, Mike Housika, one charged with larceny and the other with receiving stolen goods. Mary Housika, a daughter, indicted with the parents, was not present, being at home on account of illness and unable to appear in court.

This was the shoplifting case in which a number of local merchants appeared against the defendant to push the charge and they reasonably expected a verdict of guilty. They presented ample evidence of the guilt of the woman, who was arrested in Roe & Co's store with the goods on her person which she had taken from the counters. A search on the Housika home made later disclosed large quantities of dry goods, shoes and other valuable property, evidently taken by the defendants, and which they had stored away in every nook and corner of the house. The police took possession and after transferred it to a vacant store room where itwas claimed by the various owners.

The defense presented no witnesses but the attorney for the accused woman set up the claim of insanity, saying sh was a kleptomaniac, and consequently not responsible for her acts. The jury were evidently convinced by tais specious plea and returned a verdict of not guilty as to the woman but convicted the husband of receiving stolen goods. Sentence was suspended until Tuesday at which time no doubt the husband will draw a severe sentence, but it is a question as to what disposition will be made of the woman.

Pessimism must be growing apace in Germany for the Cologne Gazette disgustedly remarks that "it is a matter of damnable importance whether we are or are not to be regarded throughout the world as blackguards' and truthfully adds that "indeed, we are so regarded now."

LIEUT. CARROLL VISITS HIS HOME IN CHARLEROI

Lieut. Thomas F. Carroll of the U. S. army has arrived home on a brief leave of absence from the Southern department. Lieut. Carroll will go from Charleroi to an Eastern camp for duty in the school of arms. This is first time he had visited his home in five years. His brother Jack Carroll is with Company A of the 110th in France.

MUST ENGAGE IN WAR WORK

Draft Board Hears Evidence In a Number of Cases Friday Evening

THIRTY-EIGHT MEN AFFECTED

Thirty-eight young men from the Fifth District in the first draft, who were not engaged in essential war occupations, were summoned to appear before the selective board at Donora, evening to show cause why they should not change their occupations, or be inducted into military service.

Of the 38 summoned, 27 appeared, sieven not reporting to the board. It developed at the hearing that quite a number of these men had changed from their former occupations and were now engaged in what the government deemed essential work. Those who found it impossible to make a change to essential work were given two weeks additional in which to locate themsevles, at the end of which time, if they are still without work of this character, they will be given a card to Boyd Crumrine, in charge of the U. S. Labor Bureau for Washington county, who will endeavor to place these men. The eleven men who failed to appear will be given another opportunity to present their cases to theboard, failure of which may result in their induction into military service without further notice.

The men who are affected by this "work or fight" order are mostly storemanagers, clerks and like occupations. Men from all three towns in the district are in this class.

RAINFALL WAS QUITE HEAVY IN 24 HOURS

The rainfall at Lock No. 4 from 8 o'clock Friday morning until 8 o'clock this morning showed a total precipitation of 2.58 inches. If the rainfall was general throughout the valley it will likely make quite a swell in the Monongahela, which will mean that the pools will be cleaned of the accumulated acids. If this should be the case it would be quite a relief to navigation interests, whose boats are now suffering from boiler trouble on account of present conditions.

HONORABLE WARRIORS

The Huns are now lifting up their voices in the lament that American soldiers are not honorable fighters, that they are not chivalrous, that they ignore the rules of manly warfare. The use of sawed off shotguns is one of the counts in the Hun indictment against us. Then we don't surrender when we are isolated in overrun territory. We fight right on. Our boys do even worse than that. They shoot down Huns right on the ground the Huns have captured. And over and over all that, these dishonorable Yankee warriors gather in hordes of Huns right in Hun-ridden territory and make them do a sawed off shotgun quickstep into the Allied lines. The Cologne Gazette denounces this "American barbarism" and says we will be using tomahawks and scalping knives next.

So we are not "honorable warriors" say the Huns—those same Huns whose brutal bestialities during the past four years have made the very name of their nationality a loathing and an execration for generations unborn, a curse and a hissing throughout all the civilized world. Those same Huns who drove before them prisoners of war, old men, mothers with babes at their breasts and little children clinging to their skirts, as shields for the hulking brutes behind them as they advanced to battle. Those same Huns who poisoned wells; who scattered from the sky poisoned candy that little children might find it and die in agony from it; who dropped bombs on open cities at night; who murdered women nurses in cold blood; who deliberately bombed plainly marked hospitals on land and hospital ships at sea; who skulking under water, torpedoed ships and drowned and maimed or slaughtered with shot and shell hundreds of women and children struggling in the water, who butchered and tortured priests; who ravished nuns and nurses and wives and daughters and even little girls barely out of the nursery; who drove off to brutal slavery whole villages of heretofore well-to-do, peaceful, happy folk; who violated every treaty, every pledge, every guarantee, to which they had put their perjured signature.

These are not all, they are only a part of the achievements of these unspeakable beasts who now accuse our American soldiers of not being "honorable warriors." And the marvel of it all is that they are utterly unconscious of the ghastly, grotesque humor of such a charge coming from such a source. Utterly unconscious of their own hideous plight in the eyes of all civilized humanity. Evidently they think that on the whole they stand as rather engaging, alluring personalities before an admiring world. Not a shadow of doubt seems to exist in their astounding minds that they are the standards, the arbiters of all the amenities and properties and the super-refinements of human society both in peace and war.

And there are those who talk of compromising with this homicidal maniac monstrosity and of again letting him again run loose, armed and equipped, to get his second wind for another onslaught upon the world.

OUR SAVING AND SPENDING

Some Americans are economizing and some are not; some are spending less and some are spending more than they did before the war. The Council of National Defense, after canvassing merchants large and small and many labor organizations in different parts of the country, and after sifting the information obtained, have reported: That the East and North are restricting purchases, while the South and West are spending more money than ever before. That women have increased their expenditures, while men are economizing. That there are unusually heavy sales of automobile and bicycle supplies, pianos and organs, diamonds, watches and other jewelry. That the well to do are not purchasing luxuries, whereas those formerly unable to obtain them are.

That highly paid labor, with pockets full to bulging, should be unable to resist luxuries hitherto unobtainable, regardless of the cost, can readily be understood. The same thing has been noted in Europe, not only in England and France but even in Germany where the sons of toil are devouring eggs at 25 cents each. Other features of the report are less susceptible to explanation. Why are the South and West unheeding official admonition and spending more money than ever before? The prosperous and thoughtlessly prodigal labor element are not more largely represented in proportion to populations in these sections than in the East and North. Finally, why have women "increased their expenditures while men are economizing?" Are women less intelligently appreciative of the situation than men or is this showing in part a result of the fact that three million men are in the army where they have need to spend but little? Obviously the report questions the intelligent patriotism of the South of the West and of American women.

THE DAY IS PAST

The war is not over by a deal. Many weary months of misery and carnage must come and many thousands of human beings must be killed and maimed before the last shot is fired and curtain is finally rung down on the hideous nightmare spectacle. But that Germany can emerge from the awful chaos she has wrought otherwise than in the bitterness of defeat can now be no longer in doubt. Her one hope was in the last desperate plunge of the summer that is now on the wane and that hope is gone and gone forever. She won nothing in that last frenzied gamble. She lost men by the hundred thousand, mountains of munitions and supplies a vast army's equipment in cannon and small arms and above all, prestige and from now on, all hope of anything ahead save dogged, sullen, steadily weakening defense against the deadly, irresistible advance of the inevitable fate.

While General Foch presses his present advantage to still further localized achievement, whether he strikes a new and maybe a harder blow in a still another quarter, or whether he holds the foe in constantly harassed and tortured deadlock for months to come until our own overwhelming force gets there, the result for Germany can be put the same. She tried her last chance and she failed. She shot her heaviest bolt and it recoiled on her own head. She has lost the war—lost that great "Day" for which during half a century she has been preparing and which was to have put a prostrate world under her feet.

How slowly or how swiftly the mighty Hun fabric will crumble to ruin is now the only uncertainty in the awful tragedy's climax. For Germany herself the quicker the agony is over the better; the less of wreckage she will have to crawl out from under; the more of material, fluid and static, she will have wherewith to take up the heartbreaking task of beginning all over again and trying to recover from the wretched plight in which her madmen in control will have landed her.

A pretty high price to pay for shining swords, rattling sabres, cocked mustaches, swashbuckler swaggering and years of drill sergeant knoumings—a pretty high price for boons such as these, precious as they are. But Germany will pay it, pay it to the last stiver, receiving the united loathing and execration of the civilized world she has outraged by way of final, but wholly inadequate, acquittance. —The North American Review's War Weekly.

LINCOLN THE LAWYER

Every one knows that Abraham Lincoln practiced law at the outset, but naturally he is remembered as a statesman and is practically always quoted as such, his accessible speeches being concerned with political controversy or public affairs. In this country one rarely if ever hears a citation from Lincoln the lawyer, yet such a citation was heard recently in the High Court of Justice in England, Sir Thomas Evans, President Judge, interrupting an argument of the attorney general to say. "I see I have here a note from President Lincoln's 'lost speech.' President Lincoln was not only American President; he was also a lawyer. He stated: 'It is. I believe, a principle of law that when one party to a contract violates it so grossly as to destroy the object for which it is made, the other party may rescind it.'"

It is recalled that this utterance was made by Lincoln in 1856 in the course of an argument which has been called the "Lost Speech" in consequence of the fact that the reporters present were so moved by the speaker's eloquence that they forgot to take notes, the only brief record made being that of a young lawyer. Lincoln the lawyer is said to have revealed the qualifications of a good judge and doubtless he would have become one if he had not gone into politics. Certainly this reference by a British Judge to a passage in a speech delivered over sixty years ago is a strikingly complimentary recognition of Lincoln's ability as a lawyer.

On the one hand the bewildered Germans are told that because of the mad war craze in America the relatively peaceable British and French are prevented from agreeing to Germany's terms. Again they hear that the war is so unpopular in America that the mothers of soldiers are rioting and the soldiers themselves have to be driven on the transports at the point of the bayonet. Such are some of the slightly conflicting stories told by German editors who seem to have literally arrived at their wit's end.

The Germans are now said to be confiding in the hope that Mr. Hoover's ministrations and England's great grain crop will make British soldiers too fat to fight, doubtless forgetting Napoleon's shrewd remark which will retain its point in all ages that an army is like a serpent in that it moves on its stomach.

LET'S BRING DOWN THE DOLLARS THAT ARE FLYINC AWAY FROM US

Is there any way to stop this flight? How many communities are making an effort to check this stampede of money that flies out of their home town. What is our community doing? What would all this money mean to you and me, if it were spent with our own business men? The picture is no dream or fancy. The artist has simply brought home to us the hard facts. Let us face them as they are. The group of men with rifles provides the right action for us. Let us organize to stop this flight. Let each one of us remember this. That home values increase in proportion as we spend our money at home. That home values disappear with every dollar sent away.
